Background

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) were adopted by all United Nations Member States in 2015 as a universal call to action to end poverty, protect the planet and ensure that all people enjoy peace and prosperity by 2030. Mobilizing sufficient financing for implementing the 2030 Agenda remains a major challenge. The COVID-19 pandemic has made this both more urgent and more elusive. The shortfall in public resources is set to widen, as countries marshal vast sums toward an effective response to the crisis and rebuilding their economies. Against this background, the imperative to strengthen systems of accountability, transparency and integrity assumes even greater importance.

The High-Level Panel on International Financial Accountability, Transparency and Integrity for Achieving the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development (FACTI Panel) was launched by the President of the United Nations General Assembly and the President of ECOSOC in March 2020. The Panel was mandated to explore further actions that may be needed by the international community in the following areas: financial and beneficial ownership transparency, tax matters, bribery and corruption, money laundering, confiscation and disposal of the proceeds of crime and the recovery and return of stolen assets.

The FACTI Panel consulted with Member States, international organizations, experts, business and civil society. It commissioned background papers from subject matter experts and took inputs from all external stakeholders to inform its views. The Panel's interim report, published in September 2020, analyzed the vulnerabilities and impediments present in the current international systems related to financial accountability, transparency and integrity issues. It found that these systems can help countries prevent the drain of resources from development, contributing to achieving the 2030 Agenda, but that they lack co-ordination, leave gaps, overlap and even conflict with each other.

Objective and scope

The event is being convened to present the report of the FACTI Panel to United Nations Member States and all other stakeholders. The report will provide evidence-based recommendations, building on the successes and ongoing work of existing mechanisms, and priority actions for addressing the identified challenges for tax cooperation, anti-corruption, and anti-money laundering.

The report is expected to contribute to the overall efforts undertaken by Member States to implement the ambitious and transformational vision of the 2030 Agenda.
